EXAMINER'S AMENDMENT

1. An examiner's amendment to the record appears below. Should the changes and/or additions be unacceptable to applicant, an amendment may be filed as provided by 37 CFR 1.312. To ensure consideration of such an amendment, it MUST be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee.

Authorization for this examiner's amendment was given in a telephone interview with Mr. LaPrairie on May 30, 2006.

The application has been amended as follows:

IN THE SPECIFICATION:

At page 1 of the specification,

-- RELATED APPLICATIONS

This application claims the benefit of U. S. Provisional Application No.

60/462022, filed April 11, 2003. -

is inserted prior to "TECHNICAL FIELD".

At page 1 of the specification,

-- RELATED APPLICATIONS

[0002] This application claims the benefit of U. S. Provisional Application No. 60/462022, filed April 11, 2003. – is deleted after paragraph [0001].

Application/Control Number: 10/812,861 Page 3

Art Unit: 1762

2. This amendment places the "Related Applications" material at the beginning of the specification.

REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

3. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: the closest prior art is to Rayburn (US 3731354), Tawfik et al (US 2004/0101738) and Van Steenkiste '796 (US 6623796), which as discussed in paragraph 9 of the Final Rejection of March 20, 2006, provides, in combination the suggestion of kinetic spray coating a metal particles onto a substrate coated with a plastic-type material so that the particles pass through the plastic type material and adhere to the substrate upon impact. However, Van Steenkiste '796 only provides that the particles can be up to 250 microns in diameter for the kinetic spraying. There is no teaching or suggestion in the references to provide that the particles of material that are kinetically sprayed are "600 to 1400" microns" in average nominal diameter as is now required by independent claim 12. Also provided is Van Steenkiste et al '386 (US 6283386), which while it provides that the particles that can be sprayed can be "in excess of 100 microns" (column 2, lines 20-25) also provides that testing has demonstrated the capability of forming kinetic coatings using particles sized in a range between 50 to 106 microns (column 6, lines 5-10), with no indication to one of ordinary skill in the art that particles sized between "600 to 1400" microns" are contemplated and furthermore does not indicate the benefits applicant gets from such a particle size as indicated at paragraph [0025] of this application.

The Examiner notes that claim 12, part e) requires "kinetic spraying of the particles". The Examiner understands by "kinetic spraying" that applicant means that a kinetic spray process described in paragraph [0004] of the specification is performed, whereby the particles are accelerated to a velocity sufficient to adhere to the substrate but do not melt or thermally soften prior to impingement on the substrate, as was discussed in paragraph 2 of the Final Rejection of March 20, 2006. The Examiner notes that claim 12, in the preamble and part c) the covering of the substrate with a "plastic-type" material is claimed, and by "plastic-type" the Examiner understands applicant to mean the term as described in paragraph [0005] of the specification, where applicant states that "In the present specification and claims the term plastic-type material is meant to designate not only true plastic but also polyurethanes, polymers, nylons, rubbers, and elastomers."

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
